

Administer Medication but Use Nothing Unlawful116:

Description

September 20 2 : Safar 14 4 Issue No.116

Health is a boon and blessing entrusted to man by Allah. Negligence in Health is a betrayal of this trust. In order to worship Allah, one taking care of health is a betrayal of this trust. Believers need healthy bodies and minds. Effectively,

What a person consumes affects his physical health. The health extends to spiritual well-being too. The process in effect of consumption to include spiritual well-being commences even before birth whilst the foetus is being nourished in the womb. The fact is that Many pharmaceutical, nutraceutical and wellness products contain active ingredients derived from Haraam sources. Whilst it is the responsibility of the individual Muslim healthcare professional to ensure that the medication being administered meets Halaal requirements, the professional too is entrusted with the responsibility to prescribe medication which is Halaal compliant.

It is imperative that Muslim consumers and conscientious healthcare professionals actively engage those involved in the manufacturing, distributing, dispensing, and prescribing of medication and alert them to the needs of Muslim consumers. The industry will pursue Halaal alternatives if they are made aware of the needs of Muslim consumers who make up almost a third of the global population. Industry will change when consumers demand change.
